

Ch5-COROMANDAL EXPRESS

Ques/Ans

1. In the beginning, the five friends were excited but also a little nervous about their train journey. As the journey continued, they saw new places, met new people, and learned many things. They felt scared when they remembered the Balasore accident, but they slowly overcame their fear. By the end of the journey, they became more confident, happy, and felt proud of what they had experienced.

2. Mr. Suresh Singh was a kind and wise man who guided the young travelers during their journey. He helped them feel safe and gave them useful advice. His presence made the journey smoother, and he taught them the value of being responsible and respectful.

3. During the train ride, the friends saw mountains, rivers, green fields, and small towns. These views helped them learn more about the beauty of India and its geography. Watching these different places made them curious and gave them a new way to learn outside the classroom.

4. The story shows that India is a country where people from different religions, languages, and cultures live together. During the train journey, the friends met different kinds of people. This helped them understand how people can be different but still united. The train journey is like a symbol of India – many people, many cultures, but all connected.

5. Some friends were very scared after remembering the Balasore accident, while others tried to stay calm. They supported each other, talked about their fears, and encouraged one another. By sharing their feelings and staying together, they slowly felt better and overcame their fear.

6. The journey helped the friends grow as people. They learned to be more brave, kind, and responsible. They also understood the importance of friendship, teamwork, and being open to learning from others. These lessons helped them become better individuals.

7. The story shows that it is important to listen to and respect elders like Mr. Suresh Singh. The friends also showed kindness to other passengers during the journey. These actions made their trip more meaningful and enjoyable. The story teaches us that respect and kindness make the world a better place.

8. The train journey brought the friends closer. They shared food, stories, fears, and laughter. They learned to help and understand one another. All these moments made their friendship stronger and created beautiful memories they would never forget.
